This architectural drawing shows a perspective view of a building's exterior and roof. The building features a gabled roof with a complex internal truss system, including a large central truss and smaller ones at the eaves. The roof is covered with a pattern of small, dark, rectangular tiles. The main facade is composed of horizontal wooden planks. There are several windows: a large multi-paned window on the left, a smaller multi-paned window in the center, and a small square window on the right. A small, square, white structure is visible on the roof near the right edge. The drawing is a black and white line art illustration with some color accents (orange/brown) on the roof trusses and window frames.
